

Not Taking The Time To Educate Yourself

Michael Allawos, Principal Consultant

This is typically a big mistake that too many people make when starting their business they are generally under educated about all of the facets that surround operating a business and how to get it to profitability. Some people try and figure this out on their own without any help. That's fine if that's what you want to do, however, it may be a long time from achieving success of any kind.

There are all kinds of places that you can start your education process and learn what you need to know for success. You can get an internet marketing guide, eBook, go to forums, read articles, blogs or anything else that has to do with your business interests. One of my favorite places to find specific answers is wikihow.org and wikipedia.org.

One of the best ways to learn is to find a forum where professionals in your industry hang out who have achieved what you are trying accomplish. One great forum for this is the forum: <http://www.warriorforum.com> However you need to be aware, all forums can become time traps. Stay focused, get in, search and get out. A quick an easy way to search this particular forum is here: <http://www.robertplank.com/warriors/search.php>. There are also many others:

<https://www.quora.com/>
<https://bizwarriors.com/forum/>
<https://community.startupnation.com/>
<https://www.youngentrepreneursforum.com/>
<https://www.startups.com/>
<https://www.thefastlaneforum.com/community/>
<https://retireat21.com/>

These are all well-known forums that have a lot of business experts that contribute to it. They will be more than happy to help you with many areas that you need help in. You can ask them questions, ask their advice on where you can learn what you need to, or find out what guide they would recommend to help you along the way.

You have to take the time to educate yourself on every aspect of your industry in order to ever be successful. There is no if, ands or buts about it. This is a must if you ever want to get your business to the top where you want it.

People who have achieved success are the best ones to get help from because they have done what you are trying to do. Remember to always surround yourself with folks smarter than yourself. You will find that almost everyone who has been successful would love to help you get to where they are. You just have to ask for their help. They will tell you that education on all aspects of your industry is a must for everyone trying to build their business.

Too many people get impatient and think they can do it themselves with no help. They are usually the ones that end up quitting. Don't make the same mistake that they do. Learn what you need to. You'll be amazed at how willing many of your colleagues will be to lend a hand.
